Laser Genesis removes fine lines

by Dr. Stefanie Christian

A perfect time to focus on attaining a youthful glow is just before the frigid, and unflattering temperatures of winter set in.

Laser Genesis, a skin rejuvenation therapy, appeals to both men and women because it can restore the skin's youthful glow by smoothing uneven texture, reducing pore size, and decreasing fine lines. It can also smooth uneven texture caused by mild acne scars.

Dr. Stefanie Christian

Gentle heating stimulates fibroblast cells to produce collagen. Increasing collagen in the dermis smoothes skin texture, levels superficial scars and diminishes large pores.

The procedure is very comfortable, non-invasive, and does not destroy skin components. The results are gradual, consistent, cumulative, and there are no unwanted side effects, such as bruising or excessive skin irritation.

Most patients describe a "youthful tautness" to the skin following each procedure and can expect to return to normal activities immediately.

Laser Genesis patients report excellent results over the entire face and neck.

The treatment results are gradual and cumulative. On average, patients require four to six treatments in order to achieve the results they desire. Beneficial results are usually seen after the first treatment and increase with each subsequent treatment. Moderate acne scars may need as many as 10 treatment sessions to achieve the maximum benefit.

Although most patients report few if any side effects following Laser Genesis Skin Rejuvenation, the most common is a slight flush that disappears within a few hours of treatment.

Defying age is now more possible than ever...and the winter season has never looked rosier.
